Arthur an Expensive Occupant of the Government's Mansion.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—"No occupants of the White House ever entertained so brilliantly, nor with such princely liberality as President Arthur," with such princely liberality as President Arthur," remarked an old resident of Washington to your correspondent this morning. "He is certainly a model President in that respect, and though I differ with him politically, I admire him for that. The number of White House officials and attendants is greater than that ever employed by any of his predecessors, and he entertains the distinguished guests of his own and other countries with a generosity that is simply princely in its character. I tell you, sir, he maintains the dignity of his high office in a most agreeable and becoming manner and his receptions and dinners are models of taste and elegance. is favorable. The convulsion we have had here has had no reason for it. The country is prosperous, money is plentiful, the railroads are earning more than in previous years, we have not been making any new stock or issuing any more bonds and there is nothing in the general situation to present an unusual degree of prospority. The fact was people got frightened and lost their heads; that is most people did. Those who did not will make a great deal of money, I feel sure."

"While we are on that, Mr. Sage, it is reported that you have lost their heads?"

"No, but I have suffered from the people's foolishness. I do not complain, however. I think I may say that the end is not yet, and I still live."

"No, I think on the contrary, there will be what I would call a healthy advance and I look before the close of the year.

The Finance Committee of the Senate postponed for one week the consideration of the resolution for an investigation of the causes of the failure of the New York banks, in order to obtain further information on the subject. It is thought a Congressional investigation will not be ordered.

Mr. Rosecrans offered a resolution directing the Judiciary Committee to inquire into the facts and law concerning the survey of public lands belonging to San Francisco. Referred.

Mr. Ellis from the Committee on Appropriations, asked leave to report a joint resolution making an additional appropriation of $100,000 for the relief of the sufferers from the overflow of the Mississippiriver and its tributaries.

Mr. Condeny objected to the consideration of the resolution.

Mr. Hewitt of New York regretted that he should be compelled to rise to a personal explanation, and said he only did so after consultation with his coleagues on the Committee of Ways and Means. A letter had appeared in a newspaper addressed to the Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, signed by Henry W. Oliver, jr., in relation to the tariff bill introduced by him. He was informed by Mr. Morrison that the letter was given to the press before it was delivered to him yesterday. It appeared in all the papers. He was totally ignorant of its authorship until this morning in his mall he found the following letter from Pittsburg:

The copyist had made a minimal than the would have any effect whatever upon him. In the third piace, Oliver charge than 50 per cent. Secondly, Oliver said he Hewitt doubles the duty on iron roots, of which he is the largest manufacturer was simply untrue. That it doubled the duty was also inferentially stated by Oliver that he was a marker of barbed fence wire. He was a manufacturer of steel rods and not a manufacture. He was a manufacturer of steel rods and not alarge consumer. All he consumed he made. He did not think any member would believe he would draw up a bill for his personal benefit.

His Failure—How Fraud Was Practiced.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 20.—Ferdinand Ward, of the defunct firm of Grant & Ward, testified before Referee Cole again yesterday. In the course of his evidence he said he remembered a transaction involving $50,000 in United States four per cent registered bonds, issued in the name of Jerome B. Chaffee, and said he believed they were lent to the Brooklyn Trust Company. "If I am not mistaken," he added, "they came from Mr. Randall, the father-in-law of Commodore Garrison. He had business with the firm of Grant & Ward." Mr. Ward was asked "What sort of business?" and replied: "He boy-

Commodore Garrison. He had business with the firm of Grant & Ward." Mr. Ward was asked "What sort of business?" and replied: "He borrowed money of us in dealing in these bonds. He came to us about the first of April and deposited $50,000 in Government four per cent coupon bonds, and I was to get them into a pool on stocks. The bonds were to be returned to him on the first of May and a settlement in full made. The settlement was delayed. On the fifth of May, one day before the suspension, he came to my office and wanted the bonds back. I found that $50,000 in registered bonds were to come out of a loan. I took those and ordered the loan clerk to take $30,000 in coupon bonds out of another loan. These I gave to Mr. Randall."

The African Association's Bargain With France.

ow America Was Drawn Into a Foolish Agreement-Al fonso's Letter to the Cortes-Tariff in Tonguin-Cable

LONDON, May 20.-The Times, in confirming the re port that France agreed not to interfere with the African International Association in the Congo in to France, says: "It would be difficult to imagine a more glaring contrast than between the negotiations of the African International Association with America and of the same association with France. The recognition of the association's flag by America was obtained by the announcement of the broadest and most catholic policy. The association repre-sented itself as a benevolent trustee, the foster mother of the free African States, yet to be established in the interest of humanity. The French agreement, however, finds the association under-taking to hold territory if it can, and otherwise giving taking to noise territory it can, and otherwise giving to France the right of pre-emption. What was a trust for humanity thus becomes private specula-tion. The piedges of commercial freedom to all nations are entirely dropped, leaving France to enter possession unpledged. Free trade may be replaced at any moment by French protective tariff.

America has been led into a false position. The ssociation has agreed to sell what it does not ossess; the bargain is hollow and illusory. The ssociation's so-called possessions relapse into un-ppropriated territory. The subject calls for the AMERICAN STOCKS.

Harrisburg, May 20.—Ninehundred delegates are in attendance at the session of the Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows. The reports of Grand Master Hickok, Grand Treasurer Muckle and Grand Secretary Nicholson were read. The latter shows a membership of 80,504; an increase of 115, number of past grands 19 730, present august of the control of the year gave to relation of the subcen subports. It will not again be prosperous unitle Congress shall reverse its action at its last session and restore the rates of duty to those which prevailed under the tariff of 1867, by which, for the first time in the industrial history of the country, equitable relations were established between the duties on wool and those on woolen goods. It can be conclusively shown that the tariff act of that year gave to the American producers of both wool and woolens goods steady markets and a secure expansion of production, and that through this expanded production it gave the consumers chapper wools and woolens was not asked for, as has been alleged, by the conservative about wholy through the efforts of importers and others interested in securing in the United States a market for foreign mools, aided by a few parties who desired to make use of the foreign producer and wholen who deep ween cessarily compelled to rely with which to subdue the American market and which they are engaged from its present depress

These combined influences, unpatriotic and un-American, led to the passage of the unwise, abortive and suicidal tariff act of 1883, to which we firmly believe may be attributed the present depressed condition of the wool industry. You have doubtless, gentlemen, heard much of late touching the soundness of the policy putting raw materials of manufacture, including wool, on the free list. We trust you will resent such a proposition whenever and wherever made with the indignation which it greatly merits. Wool is furnished by the product of one million flock-owners, who have, by years of intelligent and patient labor and the expenditure of large sums of money, brought their product to the present high standard of excellence. To class it simply as "raw material;" as something that has been produced almost entirely without cost or expenditure of time and labor, is an injustice against which we trust you will enter an effective protest. The arguments used in defense of the principle of protection apply at least as forcibly to wool as to any article on the tariff schedule. The growing of wool is equal with the growing of food and forests, and with the manufacture of iron and steel, the maintenance of commercial marine and navy, of a National militia, a primary element of National defence in war, and of financial security and independence in peace, the loss or neglect of which would derence in peace, the loss or neglect of which would derence in peace, the loss or neglect of which would derence in year, and of financial security and independence in peace, the loss or neglect of which would derence in year, and of financial security and independence in peace, the loss or neglect of which would derence in year, the production of the substrail and colonial vassalage to foreign producers, equally fatal to happiness and unbecoming to the natural and colonial vassalage to foreign producers, equally fatal to happiness and unbecoming to the nontry and all its interests in a condition of industrial and colonial vassalage to fore

The Proportion of Exchange Members Who

The principal business transacted on 'Chang' today was the election to determine whether or not kets, to be used for what is commonly known as bucket-shop purposes?

"Yes, or No."
Besides the ballots there were a number of documents in circulation, one supporting the bucket-shop and one the anti-bucket-shop side of the question. The bucket-shop proprietors were all on the floor, working anxiously for existence. A great deal more work was done on their side than on the other, and yet half an hour after the voting had begun there was no longer any doubt as to what the result would be. Some of the members wanted to bet that the result would be ten to one against the bucket-shops and even the most conservative predicted a majority of five to one against the "public acchanges."

Fred You Flui, who was one of the hardest workers for the bucket-shops, gave up the contest at noon, and admitted that he and his friends were beaten-beaten badly. At the polls the voting was constant and up to the time the polls were closed at one o'clock 973 votes had been cast. As soon as these votes could be counted—about 2 o'clock—the result was amnounced: No. 845 votes; yes, 128 votes. This means that the bucket-shops will not be permitted to use the Exphange quotations.

SHOT HIMSELF.

Michael Schoettel Commits Suicide While Recovering from a Spree.

A curious crowd of men and boys were peeping through the crevices in the front door curtains of 106 South Fourth street, this morning, striving to get a glimpse of the stark body of a dead man which lay in the rear of the store-room. The sharp report of a revolver, followed shortly afterward by the cry of a woman, had inducated that a tragedy had been enacted in the house, and the first persons on the scene found Michael Schoettel, the proprietor of the clothing store, lying in the corner of the room with a revolver in his hand and an ugly wound from which blood and brains oozed in his right temple. His aim had been sure for he was dead. The deed was committed about 10 o'clock and by 11 o'clock the Coroner was on the spot holding an inquest. Mrs. Elizabeth Schoettel, the wife of the deceased, testified that her husband drank hard at times and when in his cup was quarrelsome and almost insane in his actions. He was jealous of her at such times and frequently threatened to shoot her and then shoot himself. She also said that after such drinking spells he suffered both mental and bodily distress, and was so dejected that she feared often that he would commit some rash act. Last night he was so violent in his threats that she took the precaution to search for any weapons he might have in the house, but found only an old rusty and empty pistol. Vitt Huss, a boot and shoe dealer at 208 South Fifth street corroborated the woman's statement. He said he had no cause for jealousy, but was unreasable in his cups, and abused the woman and her family. He was recovering from a drunk yesterday and witness had great difficulty in dissuading him from his desperate purpose of murder and suicide, but finally succeeded. He saw him this morning a few minutes before the shot was fired and found him nervous and dejected. Schoettel declared that he had no revolver. The weapon used was a new American double action 38-caliber revolver, and it is supposed that he purchased Michael Schoettel Commits Suicide While

More Than Enough.

From the Merchant Traveler.

The sun was setting in the West.

If anybody ever heard of it setting any place else, he will please report the fact at this office and take the gate money.

A glorious maiden, just budding into beautiful womanhood, stood upon the lawn surrounding her father's mansion, and shone as radiant as a living ruby upon an emerald throne.

Beside her was Harold De Courey, a bonny lad who loved her well, but whose youth and fortune were against him. He was 18 and getting $6 a week.

He sighed as he gazed in rapt emotion upon her lovely face and figure and wished that he had $25 and was a million years old.

You see he was distracted with love, or he would have wished he had a million dollars and was 25 years old.

It is ever thus.

She fondly met his fervid gaze and eyes looked love to eyes that spake again.

This is not original.

She drew nearer to him, and, placing her soft hands upon his manly shoulders, she turned her lovely hazel eyes searchingly upon his face, and finally they rested with almost painful comentration upon his lips.

Ben Butler's Best Girl.

From the Chicago News.

It now appears that there is a woman at the bottom of Ben Butler's vaulting political aspirations. For years the Massachusetts statesman has been purring around Miss Anna Dickinson, and it is an open secret that the accomplished lady has rejected his matrimonial propositions on no less than five distinct occasions. At last, however, an understanding between the two appears to have been arrived at. Miss Dickinson has informed Benjamin that she will listen to him kindly if he succeeds in making the riffle for the presidency, and it is with this promise lying next his heart and inspiring him to prodigies of valor that Benjamin has started in to set the world afire between now and the first Tuesday after the first Monday of next November. That the coquettish Miss Dickinson has no idea that her ambitious oil lover will be able to accomplish the herculean task he has undertaken is evident in the fact that she is organizing a dramatic company for next season and has already started in at rehearing several new plays. But love burns fiercely in old Ben's bosom, and, with the double prime of presidential honors and the fair Anna before his weather eye, the race he will make this summer will be prodigious, if not successful.

Governor Phelps has now been in California for five months or more, being detained there by his rheumatism. The political question of the hour during the past three months has been, whether or not he was in the race for Governor, and his friends have been just as earnest in asserting that he would be as the friends of other candidates have been in denying it. Several times he fixed dates for starting for home, but the rheumatism took a new grip on his legs each time just as he was about to start. Now, however, he has not only started but has covered the worst part of the journey homeward, which consists of a trip of eighty or ninety miles by stage from the springs, where he has been recuperating to a railroad point. It is altogether probable that unless he intended to make the race he would not have started at this time. as he had nothing to lose by waiting there a month or two more, except political strength. Opinions as to the effect of his late advent differ very widely. Some of the propheta argue that his beom will be all the greater because of its suddenness and of his late disability. Others hold that the candidates in the field have already secured piedges of so many votes through the State as to leave the old war horse-little chance to win. Col. Armstrong, Col. J. C. Normille and Col. Charles Gonter, however, are unanimous in the opinion that Gov. Phelps can give 'em all a handleap of the distance from San Francisco to St. Louis, and yet beat them all in the race. Whatever may be the result, the announcement that Phelps is coming has created quite a flurry.

arrived in St. Louis this morning, for a breathing spell in his canvass, and will probably move out tonight for Springfield to see what the editorial convention is doing. The Judge says that in a large number of counties no attention is being paid to that portion of the call of the Central Committee which fixes the time for holding primaries for the election of delegates to the nominating convention. "It seems to me," said he, "that that part of the call has been misinterpreted. My idea is that it never was intended to be mandatory, but was merely suggestive. Up in our region the suggestion is being very generally acted upon, and in one county the convention has been put off to the very latest possible moment." The Judge says he has neither seen nor heard anything of Gen. Gooding in his tracels and he supposed the General was still in St. Louis. In fact the General's absence for over two weeks, without a word being heard from him, begins to suggest a mysterious disappearance, and to lead his friends to suspect that some of his apprehensive rivals have been indulging in a bit of foul play. Speaking of the seeming apathy which prevalls in this region at present, concerning political matters, Judge Bashaw says that it is in strong contrast with the state of affairs in many of the rural districts, notably Salline County, where the excitement is very marked. As to the report that Congressman Buckner will capture the Pike County delegation, despite Gov. Campbell's strong claims as its favorite son, Judge Bashaw declines to express any opinion any further than to say that Mr. Buckner has great strength in Pike.

The alleged export demand for wheat is disposed of by the New York Bulletin as follows: "Not too much stress must be complished with exporters; the increased movement is directly due to the forcing process, and Chicago spring wheat, which, by the way, is the only kind now salable, has been sold to-day at 90c, which is less by 11/6 per busbel than it can be laid down here from the West. Still, the grain is to be shipped out and exporters seem to be willing to buy more if they can be allowed to dictate the price, whereas for some days past they have been practically out of the market at any price. The sale of winter wheat, with out of the question." And Seymour, Hunt. & Co., of Chicago, wire E. M. Samuel & Sons: "Very littledoing outside the local trade. THE millionaires of New York start the Arthur boom to-night by a mass meeting at the Cooper Union. It remains to be seen whether this movement is wise or not, but of its fitness there can be no doubt. President ARTHUR is the only President of the United States who has publicly expressed his appreciation of the value of money in carrying an election.

THE British Government, which has regular ly paid to the heirs of WILLIAM PENN the sum of £4,000 per annum, is struck by the absurdity of a pension to the founder of Pennsylvania and will probably commute it. It is only just to the State of Pennsylvania to say that the grand old Commonwealth has no objection to being pensioned by the tariff act, and it will be a cold day when Pennsylvania votes for the abolition of its share in that pension.

COPIAH AND WASHINGTON.

The independent citizens of Copiah County have reviewed the recent trial in which WHEEL ER was acquitted of the charge of murdering MATTHEWS, and there is no doubt that the trial was a farce. In the existing state of society in that part of the country there is no such thing as obtaining a fair trial for a political murder or for any crime which is committed in the interest of political rivalry. But it should be borne in mind that Copiah County is poor and sparsely populated. It is one of those unfortunate outlying districts in which old feelings of violence survive, because the growth and progress of the more recent years have not yet reached it. But if we are to judge it by the disgraceful result of this one trial, it is no worse than Washington City, the center of the Nation, the seat of our political authority.

There is no stronger moral or legal proof of the guilt of Wheeler for the crime for which he was indicted than there is of the guilt of the Star-route thieves for their crime. Indeed, in case of a murder trial there is always an element of doubt, whereas, in the case of the Star-route thieves, their guilt was as clearly proven as any human evidence can prove any fact, yet they escaped. They were acquitted, not by a rustic court in a backwoods county, but in th Nation's capital, within a stone's throw of the tribunal of the Supreme Court itself. It was not a little group of veteran Ku-Kluxers and night-riders who formed public opinion about their court. They were surrounded by the public departments, by the Senate and the House, by the Foreign Legations, by corps of correspondents of all papers in all parts of the world. million eyes looked on; all ears heard the testimony, all minds judged the case. The unanimous assent of the world convicted the thieves, and yet they were acquitted. Why?

Because party spirit, which is blind and sav age in Copiah County, is putrid with corruption in Washington, and there is no such thing as enforcing justice or punishing crime in Washington in cases in which the rascals are connected with the party in power. This has been proved not once, but in a dozen cases. Large thieves and small thieves, alike escape. Contract swindlers, pay swindlers, Star-route swindlers, perjurers, money-package thieves, whisky ringsters, naval extortionists, landpence ha'penny every year. But we notice that grabbers, false witnesses, and all the scum and ruck of corrupt officialism are safer in Wash ington than a political murderer is in Copiah. Let us condemn Copiah, but let 'us not be guilty of the absurd nonsense of getting excited over an isolated and exceptional crime committed in an out of the way corner of the country, and then willfully shut our eyes to the insolence of crime which holds possession of the na that the contracts were all imaginary. On the tional capital and of the authority of the Govcontrary, FRED. GRANT could not keep a good ernment, and which defies decency because it knows that it can count on the Government to protect it from all danger. Copiah is a lingerthe profits. CORPORATION LANDLORDS. The Globe-Democrat advocates the defeat of any legislation restricting the purchase or possession of land by corporations in any quantity whatever. Doubtless some of the proposed legislation on that subject should be promptly voted down. Senator PLUMB's bill, for instance, should meet with a crushing defeat, but for reasons the very opposite of those assigned by the Globe-Democrat. PLUMB's bill makes an ostentatious display of restricting corporation land monopoly, while at the same time it removes existing restrictions, and is really a measure to facilitate and legalize the acquisition and holding of land in mortmain by great corporations. True, it forbids foreign corporations, 10 per cent of whose stock is held by aliens, to acquire any land whatever from the public domain. But it provides that other corporations may acquire not exceeding five thousand acres each, and it expressly provides that railroad corporations shall be excepted from this restriction as to the quantity of land they may acquire and hold. It expressly authorizes them to acquire ownerple, of all lands granted them by the Govern the transaction of their business." pared with that of 1882, and they demand that three years after the completion of their roads the aforesaid tariff shall be restored, in order in which to sell their lands. They evaded these restrictions by mortgaging the land or by sham sales to other corporations and syndicates comred to the flockmasters. Now, the shrinkage posed of their own stockholders. And now comes this Plumb bill to facilitate such frauds, to convert a mere leasehold or limited estate into a perpetual fee simple, and to aid and legalize, in a covert manner, the very landgrabbing processes that are rapidly turning our money we lost on wheat and other articles of entire public domain into the baronial estates

To permit this thing to go on with the sand tion of law is contrary to all the traditions of class of losers for their losses by the our race and to the policy of our Government. shrinkage of prices during the last two years, From the time when the Abbey and Church why favor the class that has suffered least of lands of England were expropriated, English and American laws have jealously guarded against any extension of the area of land in the "dead hand" of corporations. With boundless free pasturage in the been restricted to limited estates in small quan-West, the flock-masters can market the clip of tities of land, strictly limited in amount to the necessities of some specific use, and they have rarely been treated as lawful landlords for purposes of cultivation or speculation. Just at this time, when "Cattle King" corporations and railway grant monopolists are rapidly excludng the individual buyers and settlers from every spring and pool and running brook, and from very arable section in our vast public domain ve cannot join our Republican neighbor in suporting this new baronial organization of soci ety, with its mortmain land monopoly.

THE CITY'S INTERESTS.

The Municipal Assembly has shown itsel nore ready to fix a day for adjournment than it has to get itself ready for adjournment by disposing of the business before it. This helps to confirm the suspicion that the disgraceful record of the special session will be repeated at this session, and that the people of St. Louis who have been patiently waiting on the Municinal Assembly for more than a year for needed public improvements will be again tricked and cheated by an adjournment with all busines left unfinished If this is really to be the case, it will show that there has been all along a secret under standing between a faithless majority of our public servants and the ring of interested lobbyists to prevent the projected enterprises from which so much was expected. There was disappointment over the failure to secure a road to Forest Park. The only cause of the failure was that the Municipal Assembly consulted the pecuniary interests of the horse railroad ring rather than the welfare of the city. Since ther the need has grown more pressing and the awakening of public interest in improved means of transit has been evidenced by the number of propositions made for cable roads, belt roads and other franchises.

These propositions have now had full consid-Their merits are understood, and al that remains to be done is to act on them. The period for discussion has passed, and the people simply look to their representatives to give then the proper authority to make these improve nents, or else to accept the responsibility of rejecting all the propositions.

We trust that the people of St. Louis will no e exposed to the humiliation of seeing their vishes slighted by the Municipal Assembly.

OFFICE-HOLDERS BEWARE. The civil service law provides a fine of $5.00 and a five years' term in the Penitentiary for any Senator, Representative or Territorial Delegate in Congress, or any officer or employe of either House, or any executive, judicial, mil itary or naval officer of the United States, or any clerk or employe of any department of the Government of the United States, who shall be convicted of soliciting or receiving, directly or indirectly, or of being in any manner concerned in soliciting or receiving any assessment, sub scription or contribution for any political purpose whatever, from any officer, clerk or em plove of the United States, or from any person receiving compensation from any moneys derived from the Treasury of the United

This law, it will be seen, applies to voluntary contributions as well as to assessments, "for any political purpose whatever," including of course such legitimate campaign expenses as brass bands, torch-light processions, posters, etc. It applies to postmasters and other Government officials or employes serving on local political committees as well as to the Congressional campaign committees, and it simply makes them all liable to fine and imprisonment if they are in any way concerned in the collection and expenditure of any moneys-derived from the Treasury of the United States for any political purpose whatever. Since the Republican party machine has usu ally been composed chiefly of the very person forbidden by this law to raise money as Republican campaign funds have heretofore been serve the country while in its pay and leave the party to take care of itself.

Mr. Andrew G. Curtin

From the Philadelphia Record.

Fresh from his vote refusing even to legislate or the tariff, ex-Gov. Curtin takes occasion to remark that "the Republicans themselves will be compelled to yield something in favor of reduced taxes and against the monopoly features of our revenue laws an if they should carry the President in November. This is an observation that has been frequently made in view of the unfortunate position of the Demo crats in Congress, but its echo sounds oddly enough from one of the Representatives who helped to put them in that position. When the party that was moving the monopoly features of the revenue law fails from want of courage and statesmanship, the people must use some other political agency to ac complish their ends. For a number or years our.
Curtin has been around among the people of his district declaiming about the iniquity of Republican methods of taxation until they came to regard him they came to regard him to the complete the second second to the second taxation until they came. New York Evening Post, Rep.
There is a very great and widespre with Gen. Grant. People are prepared to forgive almost everything to a man to whom the country is indebted as much as it is to him, to put the best poeindebted as much as it is to him, to put the best pos-sible construction on his acts, and to do anything in reason to protect him against the consequences either of his misfortunes or mistakes. Moreover, we believe there is general acquiescence in the opinion that he was deceived as much as anybody by Ward, and believed as implicitly as anybody in Ward's stories of "profits," without knowing where they came from. But, nevertheless, it is going too far to say that "the whole nation rises up and says he is not to blame." We do not believe that the whole nation, or one quarter of it, does anything of the kind. If this, or anything like it, were the popular kind. If this, or anything like it, were the popular judgment, there would soon be an end among us to all sense of business responsibility. What the bulk of the nation says is, that he is to blame, but that his great services, and the fact that he was hims great services, and the fact that he was himself duped, make his error seem slight, and make it easy to pardon and forget it. It will not do to press those who sympathise with him too hard. They ought not to be asked, because they love and ad-mire him and are willing to help him, to suspend the ordinary rules of business morality for his benefit. his troubles for the play of the old-fashioned com above the law of the land.

At this meeting it was learned that there was a very large attendance. Mr. Jay Gould was present, and Mr. F. D. Carley, the vice-president, and other out-of-town directors, were also there. At the close it was announced that Mr. Baldwin had resigned, and that Mr. J. S. Rogers, of the Rogers' Locomotive Works, had been elected in his place. Mr. Baldwin was caught as he was hurriedly passing from one was caught as he was hurriedly passing from one room to another. "I have resigned on personal grounds. I have leat money in the market, and didn't want the company injured in any way by any transactions of mine. The reports in circulation, affecting my character, are simply scandaious."

He, however, remains as a director, and, together with Mr. E. H. Green and myself, will constitute the finance committee. "Yes, one rumor bad it that it was $2,000,000. Now the company, I don't think, will lose a cent. It would not be becoming in me to speak of the matter at all. There is no defalcation."

A member of a prominent house near Broad street explained the circumstances which probably led to the reports of a large deficit. He said that the Louisville and Nashville about two years ago authorized $3,000,000 Henderson bridge bonds. The subscribers to the bonds have, it is said, made partial payments on them to the amount of $7,000,000. The bonds, however, had not been issued, and remained in the safe of the company. During the recent excitement in the street certain officials of the company, it is stated, were surprised to find THE BONDS HAD DISAPPEARED. Inquiry followed, and it was found that the bonds had been pledged at a broker's office as a margin to cover stock transactions. As soon as this was discovered, the officials implicated immediately made the amount of the loan good and returned the securities to the company. It was stated on the most reliable authority yesterday thas Mr. C. C. Baliwin and four directors of the company had formed a pool in extensive stock transactions. They deposited $300,000 of the bonds with the firm of Savin & Vanderhoff, stock brokers, to cover a loan for that amount at 4 per cent. Afterwards the securities were redeemed by the pool, who secured money from the Hanover and Continental banks. This same authority said that the securities had since been returned to the company. At the last annual election of the Western Union Mr. Baidwin was elected a director of that company and Mr. Jay Gould and Rashville. A broker said yesterday that the ob-

"Would you accept the presidency of the road should it be offered you?"

There was a gathering of about a dozen gentlemen in the parior of Mr. Baidwin's residence at No. 17 East Thirty-iffth street last evening, when a Posr-Disparch correspondent called. They were the directors of the Louisville and Sashville road and appeared to be in earnest consultation. Mr. Baidwin said to the reporter that it was merely a gathering of railroad men to discuss the situation. A director said: "We had a meeting and Mr. Rogers presided. Mr. M. H. Smith, vice-president, made an informal report of the earnings and exponses for the fiscal year, showing gross earnings of $1,500,000 and net earnings of $5,780,000. After deducting fixed charges, $4,900,000, it leaves a balance of $1.500,000 for the stock, which is equivalent to 5 per cent. Mr. Baldwin reported to the board that certain funds of the company had been invested in the purchase of stock of the company, which when sold produced a loss of $2,000. When the Columbus team played here Manager Schmeir spoke of a desire to have the two players meet in a friendly match of from 100 to 500 yards, the race to be run at Columbus. Now that the Browns play there this week, the subject has been revived, and a match for 500 yards for $500 is not improbable. The coming together of the runners will settle a much mooted question as to the superiority of their sprinting abilities. Latham is looked upon generally as being one of the best sprinters in the country, his fine form being especially well developed for sprint racing. veteran George Wright, arrived here yesterday and meet the Lucas Unions to-day at Union Park. The Boston Unions come well heeled in victories, having having had a successful three-games visit at Cincin-nati, carrying off all the games. In the nine are the once famous Toumy Bond, of the old Boston Cham-pions, and Lew Brown, who is an old timer. The club otherwise is composed of good material. Bos-ton blue blood does not permit of Sunday games, so their last game in this series will be Saturday next. The game at Union Park will be called at 4 p. m. to-day.

The Browns seem to be having a hard time of it. A dispatch from Toledo states that rain prevented the game there yesterday, and that, for a change, Deasley, Dolan and Quest got into a fight. Decoration Day.

The Western League teams now play at home, the Eastern Club following them. It remains to be seen whether the Eastern Leaguers can hold their own away from home as well as they have thus far done at home, New York especially.

John Clapp, the old St. Louis Browns' catcher, will probably be released by the New York League Club and signed by the Mets. He is anxious to catch his business partner, Jack Lynch, whom he considers one of the greatest pitchers in the profession.

A Louisville paper insists that Joe Gerhardt is playing for his release, just because he played boddy in one game. Louisville reporters are the worst in the country for fault-finding. No wonder base-ball does not fourish as it should in the Falls City.

ment is on the same extensive scale. The inhabitants are proud of their State, and we never met a Texan who would waver in his featly to his home. Now perhaps you, who have never been to Galveston, may better appreciate the pride with which the citizen of this beautiful place affirms that "we have THE PRINCIPAL CITY OF TEXAS."

It is a delightful place. Situated on the east end of the sisland, thas a wharf frontage upon the bay of three miles, and where the waters of the Gulf of Mexico roll upon the other side of the island, miles and miles of as beautiful a beach as-can be found in the world.

Originally the site was a treeless plain, but the labor of many hands have carpeted the lawns with green, planted in their midst millions of flowers from the tropics to the North. Its wide streets are embowered in foliage of evergreen, cedar and deciduous trees, while the oleander, with its blossoming foliage, is feund everywhere, making the air redolent with sweet perfumes, and even taking the place of fencing in many flustances.

Private grounds have orange groves. lemon and figures, while roses grow in such profusion and of such remarkable beauty as to entrance and bewilder the beholder. The entire year roses bloom in the open air, and when from the icy north the traveler reaches this sea-girt city, he thinks it a veritable garden of Eden.

The architectural development of the city has been as remarkable as it has been rapid. Mammoth business blocks have risen on all sides. Handsome schools and churches add to the beauty of the place, while the magnificent Cotton Exchange Building, this new building of the enterprising Galveston News; the Beach Hotel, a platial tourists' retreat situated upon the beach, with a view of the gulf for many miles in either direction, and the imposing Tremont House, are especially conspicuous.

When we say that Galveston, and the imposing Tremont House, are especially conspicuous.

GALVESTON LIKE NEW YORK CITY.

In a number of prominent features the city of Galveston is similar to New York. It is situated upon the east end of Galveston Island, which is much larger than Manhattan, being about 27 miles long with an average breadth of two and one-half miles. It lies northeast and southwest parallel with the main land, is separated from it about eighteen miles by West Bay, a sheet of water two miles in width, which is shallow almost its entire area. Between the east end of the island and Bolivar Peninsula is a passage about two miles wide at mean low tide which constitutes the inlet from the gulf to the tidal basin formed by Galveston, East, West and Trinity bays.

There are 451 square miles area in the four bays.

THE FOREIGN IMPORTS.

A resume of the imports of the year ending September 1, from the Galveston News special edition, shows a marked increase, over the preceding year. They consisted of bananas and plantains, 29,300 bunches; empty barrels, 22,346; cement and plaster, 4,770 barrels; coal, 28,568 tons; coffee, Rio, 69,585 bags (an increase of 6,500 bags; coffee, Rio, 69,585 bags (an increase of 6,500 bags; coffee, Mexican, 1,400 packages; cotton ties, 159,305 bundles; fire brick, 96,384; liquor, 9,456 packages; coranges 30,000 boxes; pig iron 215 tons; railroad iron rails 9,437; sait 69,138 sacks and 8,500 packages of miscellaneous merchandise.

GALVESTON, TEXAS, May 7.—Very few people have an adequate idea of the importance expressed in the few words, "the principal city of Texas," while if we were to say the metropolis of England or the largest city in the German Empire it would seem to be at the outset something remarkable, but when the reader studies the map, ascertains the immensity of area comprising the State, the magnificence and munificence of its crops, the variety of its re sources and the characteristics of its enterprisin people, the "principal city" rises to the dignity of a metropolis and a long look ahead cannot for-tell its possibilities, although in the dim vista of the future, when the state shall be thickly settled, yield-ing a revenue twenty times as large as at the pre-ent, the same proportionate increase may be basin formed by Galveston, East, West and Trinity bays.

There are 451 square miles area in the four bays, but the harbor proper is confined to Galveston and Bollvar Channels, with an area of three and one-half square miles, and a depth varying from eighteen to fifty-seven feet. This harbor could easily accommodate 400 deep draft vessels, allowing abundant sea room. At the present time the wharf frontage available is about 7,200 feet in length, but this could be more than doubled at a moderate expense.

Thus Galveston is the print pal seaport of this immense State, and so admirably situated in this respect that no change can ever be effected in that regard. The year ending September 1, 1883, was the most prosperous in her history; while the progressiveness was shown by the rapid and commercial facilities. The volume of trade in general merchandise has shown a decided increase over any former year, competent judges averaging

The amount of cotton reaching the ocean at Gaiveston has almost doubled during the year, and, from the fifth position in 1881-2 has attained that of

THE SECOND PORT IN THE UNITED STATES, being exceeded only by New Orleans. In direct foreign exports of cotton Gaiveston ranks third, being exceeded by New Orleans and New York. The total crop of the State of Texas shows an incresse over the previous year of 634,56 bales, and of this increase Gaiveston has received nearly two-thirds. The total receipts to September 1, 1883, were 863,104 bales, 430,344 bales more than the previous season. The receipts up to April 24, 1884, were 864,184 bales, against 775,384 bales this time last season, but the falling off is due to a poor crop, the receipts being materially lessened in all parts of the United States. "For rapid handling and careful stowage Gaiveston takes rank with the leading ports of the country, while the system of inspection and superoision exercised by the Cotton Exchange places her in the front rank of ports so far as the condition of cotton shipped is concerned and has tendedto make the port a favorite with manufacturers and cotton men abroad."

About the only other export is cotton seed oil cake, the total footing for the year mentioned being 89 cargoes or parts of cargoes, being 265,725 sacks valued at $560,801. There was some movement in sugar, molasses, flour, hides and wool, but Jargely by rail and to supply the demands of a trade throughout the State which has been and is constantly increasing and extending. Galveston is the natural market for all grain grown in the State, but it is only within the past year that the subject has received more than what might be termed spasmodic attention. Now, the entire crop of Nicaraguan wheat which is grown in the State can be handled and exported from here, while arrangements have been made to handle the cornots and other grain. Farmers in Texas are 500 miles nearer tide water than those of Kansas and Nebraska, and when they come to a competing basis.

It is almost impossible to predicate the growth of the next few years for this city, but some idea may be obtained by observing the extent of country tributary to it commercially and by looking into the intricacias of the remarkable railway systems radiating from it which serve the double purpose of bringing to the port the products of the ferfile soil for export and taking to the interior towns and cities the large amount of goods consumed by their resident populations.

Henry Irving's Views of Us, as Re-

Then, again, afterwards, Mr. Busch asks the actor where now, really, has he enjoyed the most agreeable, sociable hospitality in the United States. He answers:

"It is difficult to select, is it not? It is bewildering to try to select the incident. The Lotos dinner—that was glorious, eh? How well Whitelaw Reid spoke! and Mr. Depew, Dr. Macdonald, Gen. Porter, Mr. Oakey Hall—everybody, in fact. A great gift to be able to express your thoughts well standing up in the presence of others! Then the Lambs Club. I felt their reception as a very pleasant thing, because there were so many actors present. I think I got well out of the speech-making there by adopting Florence's written oration. That amused me greatly, and I think Florence enjoyed it as much as the others. Well, those are two of the New York events. I am endeavoring to think of them in their order, categoricaling to think of them in their order, categorically. The breakfast which Mr. Joseph Harper gave me at the University Club—what a rare lot of men! Mr. George William Curtis struck me as one who might be very eloquent as a speaker."

host was most pieasant and simple; the took greatly to MissTerry, who also took greatly to her."

Mr. Beecher fairly beamed and gushed. He gave Miss Terry an aqua marinar ring. MissTerry saked Mine. B. if she might accept it. Mine. B. said: "Yes, my dear, take it." Then the chronicler adds:

"And she did."

It was, perhaps, not surprising that Mr. Beecher loved Miss Terry, but that Mrs. Beecher was finally led on to experience the same pleasing emotion speaks magic power of magnetism in Miss Terry. Here is how these two dear women loved each other.

"It was quite touching to see the two women together, so different in their stations, their years, their occupations. Miss Terry was the first actress Mrs. Beecher had ever known. To begin with, she was very courteous; her greeting was hospitable, but not cordial. The suggestion of coldness in her demeanor gradually thawed, and at the close of the visit she took Miss Terry into her arms, and the two women cried."

Now, what did they cry for?

The preacher begged Irving to come and stay a week in the country with him, and Irving should give Beecher a bit of acting, while Beecher should give the other "ab tiof a sermon now and then," thus doing a little swapping. But, come to think, would it be that after all? What does Irving say? "Mr. Beecher is a great comedian."

The form of the narrative is largely conversations between the dramatic Bismarck and his Busch. What, for instance, could be more Bismarck-Busch like than this:

"Just so," said Mr. Irving, langhing in his silent, interior, Leatherstocking manner, etc.

Many extracts are made from newspaper reports. On the whole the book will give rise to its share of sensation and will sell abundantly. Mr. Hatton, if one catches his meaning, has a marvelous eye for distance, however:

"It is a long way from Baltimore to Brooklyn-five or six hundred miles-still from Brooklyn to Chicago is over a thousand; yet these were the journeys that followed each other. The company, as you already know, traveled from Boston to Baltim

I was there at the time, and the owner of the balloon engaged me at a salary of $1,000 a week to accompany him in his perilous voyage. Terrible Experience of a St. Louis

City, had a most thrilling experience last night, as a lacerated neck and a pair of abraded wrists attested this morning. The adventure occurred in a dense wood on an island in the Missouri River about five miles above Lexington, between the hours of 10 and 11 o'clock. Schneider is an intelligent, stoutbuilt German, of about 45 y ears of age, who has been steamboating a long time, and has served on the Montana. For four years. When seen by the Post-Disparcar reporter he was still quite nervous over what had happened, but had a very clear recollection of all the details. In order to make the statement as intelligible as possible, its various parts are transposed so as to make it consecutive. It is substantially as follows:

"You will remember that about a month ago the Montana was lying at the foot of Washington avenue one morning when the clerk, Capt. Jos. J. Earl, amounced that his safe had been robbed of $1,000 in cash, of the boat's money. He had been over on another boat for breakfast, and when he came back, about $0 clock, he made the discovery that some one had been in the safe. "My son had been over on another boat for breakfast, and when he came back, about $0 clock, he made the discovery that some one had been in the safe." My son had been "Rel, watch on the boat during the sight, and I relieved him at 70 clock that morning. Well, the detectives were hired to work on the case, and they went down and corn my son orror must and locked him up in the Chestrut Street Station, then they arrested me. We both told them we knew nothing about the money, and they let us go. The captain (Capt. Geo. Keith) told me the easiest way was the best, and I ought to talk a little sense when he talked. I had been working four years on the boat, and that was the first trouble. Well, we started out on a trip to Kansaq City a week ago last Saturday night, and all went smooth till on our way back we stopped at an island in the Missouri River, about four or five miles above Lexington. I always call it Wellington Island, but it h

"I said, 'I guess you're mistaken."

They were in a big hurry for me to put on my clothes, and I couldn't dress fast eneugh to suit them. Then they felt to see if I had a pistol, and one went ahead and two behind me. They hurried me down and across the gang-plank to the shore. As we were going ashore the captain was standing on the roof, and he holloaed 'Hello' what's this?

"I said 'Yes, that's just what I'd like to know, Captain.'

"He didn't say anything more; they hurried me out into the woods. After we got in among the trees one of the men blew a whistle, and two more men came from somewhere, and made five. The case of the people against Henry Casey came up for preliminary hearing in the Justice's court, this morning, at 10 o'clock, says a Redwood City (Cal.) special to the San Francisc Chronicle. Casey was charged with assaulting Miss Julia Frances Sweeney at the Belmont picnic last Sunday. The prosecution failed to make out a case of forcible entry. The grid admitted that she went with Casey voluntarily. The noon recess was taken, with the testimony of the girl unfinished. At 1:30 the case was resumed, and, with the testimony of the girl unfinished. At 1:30 the case was resumed, and, with the testimony of the girl unfinished. At 1:30 the case was resumed, and, with the testimony of the girl only the concluded, the prosecution rested their side of the case by placing upon the stand Joseph Finnigan, who swore to being with Casey during the whole of the afternoon.

Just as he had finished this statement, the father of the girl (Sweeney), who had been seated just three feet back of Casey, jumped to his feet, pulled a self-cocking pistol, and first three shots into the back of the prisoner. Casey sprang up at the first shot and fell to the flow after the third shot. A terrible scene followed and the greatest confusion prevalled. Casey's dying declaration was taken in shorthand, in which he stated empiratically that he was not guilty of the act. He is well known in San Father.

A Talk With a Photographer About Instantaneous Processes.

the "Shutter" Work Together-What Can be Done In

"This is just the one thing we have lacked in instantaneous photography." The "one thing" referred to was an instrument resembling in shape a common microscope, and it was in the hands of Dr. J. Murray Jordan of Philadelphia, who is the photographer for the New York Graphic in the Courier-Graphic gar which, will start son for Old Mexico. phic car which will start soon for Old Mexico.

tographer for the New York Graphic in the Courier-Graphic car which will start soon for Old Mexico. Dr. Jordan is a young man not more than 22 years of age, and besides being a practical photographer is a graduate in medicine of the University of Pennsylvania. He devoted some attention to photography as a pastime, and, taking a liking to it, gave his attention to the study, and has taken several prizes at Boston and Philadelphia. For a year past he has been in the Bernudas and in Florida photographing for the Graphic, and was chosen to accompany the Mexico expedition.

"You see," he continued, "heretofore in taking instantaneous photographs the decision as to when the object to be taken was in the center of the plate was a matter of judgment. One had to watch the object over the camera, and when it appeared to be in the center of the glass the shutter was dropped, and the object was photographed or not, according to the correctness of the operator's judgment, or his good or bad luck. Sometimes only half of the object was secured in the negative and many vexatious failures were the consequence. Now this little instrument greatly simplifies matters. It is fastened to the top of the camera and whenever the object is represented in the middle of this instrument it is in the middle of the lens of the camera and you can tell exactly when to drop the shutter. It is called the "finder" and has only been out a few weeks. Take a look through it." The reporter glanced through the "finder" and passing objects were thrown on the second glass of the instrument just as the lens throws them on the plate of the camera. It was in effect a ministure camera. "Now here is something just as important to use were thrown on the second glass of the instrument just as the lens throws them on the plate of the camera. It was in effect a ministure camera.

"Now here is something just as important to use with it. It is an instantaneous shutter. It used to be that the operator worked the slide with his hand, which combined with the necessity of watching and judging the object.

"AADE AN INSTANTANDOUS PHOTOGRAPH a very uncertain thing. A notice that this plece of brass mechanism fits over the lens of the camera, and is perfectly light tight when not taking the picture."

The mechanism of the instrument consisted of a piece of brass, one side of which was the arc of a circle and the other side was cut into two smaller semi-circles, resembling somewhat a cross section of a pair of round saddled the bags, the slit bet veen the smaller circles gradually diminishing to the top, where the solid brass joined them together, and where they worked back and forward easily on a pivot. The smaller circles just fitted over the lens, and when one was over the lens the other was on top of the instrument, but by touching a spring the brass pleces were instantly reversed. It is in the act of this reversing movement that the open slit plasses across the lens and the photograph is taken.

The spring is worked not by the hand touching it, but by a rubber bulb and tube connecting the bulb raises the spring instantly, the shutters reverse position and the picture is taken.

"You see, I can stand behind the camera," continued the doctor, 'look through the finder,' squeeze the bulb at the right moment, and the photograph is taken.

"You see, I can stand behind the camera," continued the doctor, 'look through the finder,' squeeze the bulb at the right moment, and the photograph is taken. Another important item is the shape of the slit. It used to be that we could never get cloud effects in instantaneous pictures, because the clouds only require about half as much exposure as the lower subjects."
